

Abstract

[0043] A strain compensating structure comprises a strain compensating layer adjacent an oxide-forming layer. The strain compensating layer compensates for the change in the lattice parameter due to oxidation of at least part of the oxide-forming layer.